

We Want to Hear from You!

We are interested in getting feedback from young adults and families who have participated in mental health treatment related to experiences of trauma and urges to harm oneself. Our team will be conducting interviews with individuals who are willing to share with professionals their ideas about treatment methods that would help youth and families achieve successful outcomes.

You may be eligible for the interview if you:

- Are 18 years or older, have received treatment related to experiences of trauma, and experienced urges to hurt yourself in the past (but are not having these urges currently),
- OR, Are a family member/caregiver of someone who received treatment related to experiences of trauma and urges to hurt him- or herself when younger (but is not having these urges currently)

The interview will be conducted by licensed professionals who have experience with working with families around sensitive situations. You will be compensated for your participation.

If you are willing to provide feedback to clinicians and providers on ways to better serve youth and families, please contact 919-668-0076 or email asapcenterinfo@duke.edu
